RE: Dixie, Smith & Talbert v. Antonacci, et al.
Case No.: 5:16-cv-01221 FJS-TWD
Our File: S10042

Dear Judge Dancks:

I am writing to you as an update and to comply with your request we report to you on the progress/status of the above-captioned matter.

First I want to apologize. When I requested a little more time I failed to take into account the Holiday season and that not only attorneys were taking time off to spend with their families and to recharge, but also the clients were taking time off for the Holidays. This has made communication very difficult. Therefore, the deadline of December 31, 2018 I requested was a little too aggressive.

However, I am also pleased to advise you despite the above, that I have discussed the matter with all counsel and we have made significant progress. The parties have all exchanged proposals and we are closer to a resolution than probably we ever have been. The communication lines are open, as you have instructed the parties.

We would therefore ask that a new report date be set for January 8, 2019. The parties upon returning to work are going to meet with their respective clients and then an attorney conference will be completed. We should know by this date whether the case can be resolved.
